YES!

This newsletter's focus is on the non-traditional items that DPL has to offer. It's an interesting idea. What is a "non-traditional" item? According to my dad, a DVD is something that he considers non-traditional. My dad is a voracious reader and library user, and he uses his public library for books.

As I reflect on my almost 20 year career as a librarian, I remember when computers were considered non-traditional. Computers! Something so ubiquitous today was quite the big deal when I began my career. The first public library I worked at after library school had a shelving range dedicated to regional Illinois phone books. Speaking from personal experience, those were a hard thing to shelve! We also had CD-ROMs instead of online databases and a vertical file. A vertical file was a filing cabinet that had folders of "current" information, as well as things like maps. In my tenure at that library, we got rid of the phone books and the vertical file to add more, you guessed it, public access computers.

Public libraries have been adept at evolving and changing to meet the needs of their individual communities. Deerfield is no exception. In the past year, our collection of non-traditional items has grown considerably. As a public library, we are about meeting our patrons' information needs in a variety of formats. We have learned that this can be in the form of a Roku or a telescope or even a board game. Check one out today!

Amy Falasz-Peterson, Library Director

Take home a telescope (and more)!

Once upon a time...long, long ago (ok, maybe just 20 years ago), most public libraries had only print items for check-out, plus small collections of audio and video materials. Fast-forward to 2018, and the DPL collection has creatively expanded to provide an enhanced experience for our community.

Siona and Eva Rajshekhar (l-r, cover) are two of the Library's most enthusiastic users of "non-traditional" library materials. These Wilmot students have found that their experience with DPL's Discovery Kits stimulated an interest in STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Art, and Math) activities. They have continued working in these subject areas both at camp and school. Their interest in architecture and engineering resulted in the cool wood structure on the cover, built with DPL's KEVA kit. Siona and Eva report that the structure represents the future headquarters for their business, still in the planning stages, for "spy missions or dog walking, or both!"

Come on in and learn more about all this fun stuff. You'll find our non-traditional materials in the Youth or Media departments.

THE FIGHT TO INTEGRATE DEERFIELD 60 YEAR REFLECTION

In 1959, residents of Deerfield learned a housing developer planned to sell homes in the village to black buyers as well as white buyers. Many residents opposed integration and sought to halt the development. A smaller group, the Deerfield Citizens for Human Rights, formed in support of the development. In the weeks that followed, Deerfield residents passed a park referendum designed to condemn the developer's land. The crisis in Deerfield became a national story, attracting the attention of Martin Luther King Jr., James Baldwin, and Eleanor Roosevelt. After years of demonstrations and legal battles, the land became parks that stand today.

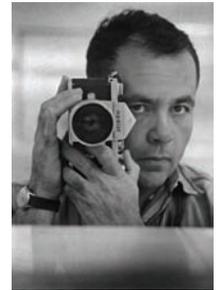

Continuing a community tradition, the Library is inviting residents, historians, and experts to offer new insights into this history. We have updated and digitized our archives, made new acquisitions and discoveries. The Library is also partnering with Deerfield schools to enhance existing curriculum. We invite you to join us for a series of discussions, lectures, exhibits and other opportunities to reflect on the 60 years since the fight to integrate Deerfield began. Programs and exhibits run from January 21–May 2, 2019. Full details at deerfieldlibrary.org/FID.

Have a story to share? Email deerfieldhistory@deerfieldlibrary.org to get started.

Each month will focus on a different theme and participants will be provided with a suggested reading list. Participants can choose a suggested title or another title, as long as it fits the theme of the month. # Friends of the Deerfield Public Library

- The Friends are very pleased with our accomplishments over the past year. With your support of the Friends' Book Store donations, annual memberships, and the August Farmers Market sale, we have been able to sponsor the following items for the Library: beach towels for the Summer Reading Program, and two photographs by Art Shay (Deerfield's prestigious former resident).
- Board Members Wanted: The Friends need your help! We are looking for 2-3 Board members to join us. Residents from Deerfield, Bannockburn or Riverwoods are eligible. All potential Board members would be asked to complete a candidate application and attend 2-3 Board meetings. If interested, please leave a message at 847-945-3311, ext. 8895. Thank you!
- Thank you: We would like to thank our shelving volunteers for all their hard work sorting, organizing and filling our book store shelves. It always looks so inviting because of their dedication. We would also like to thank our veteran volunteer who has filled the train station with books for commuters for 8+ years.
- Books for Holiday Gifts: The Friends' Book Store has children's books, cookbooks, travel, etc. for your holiday shopping. These used books are in excellent condition. Also, 98% of our sales go directly to support programs at the Library.
- Meetings: Our Winter 2019 meeting is January 28. Meetings begin at 7:00 p.m. and are held in the main floor Board Room. Visitors are welcome.

The Friends can be contacted at 847-945-3311 x8895 or at friends@deerfieldlibrary.org. Check for updates on our web page or Facebook.
